BRUCE McDOWELL IS A POTATO GROWER

Established New Record in Potato Growing on Land Located Near the City of Alliance

One hundred and fifty bushels per acre of high grade Triumph potatoes on seventy-one acres is the record of Bruce McDowell and Norman McCorkle of Alliance. And never a team was in the field the entire season. The planting and cultivating was done by Mr. McDowell, whose doughty Fordson and Case tractors took the place of horses.

The 10,650 bushels of spuds were raised on land which is located two miles southwest of Alliance, just south of Bronco lake, in the "potash district."

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR NEW BUSINESSES

Two lines of business which have not heretofore been represented on the membership list of the Alliance Community club bid fair to be lined up in the near future, viz.: A floral establishment and a bonded abstractor.

At the present time there is no florist nor abstractor in the city belonging to the commercial organization, but two different out-of-town florists and an abstractor are in correspondence with the Community club. All of them are anxious to come to Alliance, and it appears probable that it will not be long until the Community club will have both of these lines of business represented on its membership list.
